Portugal debe "pagar los costos" de la esclavitud y otros crímenes de la era colonial, dice el presidente

El presidente de Portugal, Marcelo Rebelo de Sousa, ha dicho que Portugal "asume la plena responsabilidad" de los errores del pasado y que los crímenes, incluidos los matanzas coloniales, tienen "costos". "Tenemos que pagar los costos", dijo.

Sus comentarios se produjeron después de que el año pasado dijera que Portugal debería disculparse y "asumir la responsabilidad" de su papel en el comercio transatlántico de esclavos, aunque no proporcionó detalles concretos ni una disculpa completa.

La esclavitud y la colonización siguen siendo temas controvertidos en Portugal, donde muchos argumentan que el país no ha abordado adecuadamente su pasado colonial. A pesar de las afirmaciones de Rebelo de Sousa de que Portugal está asumiendo la responsabilidad, muchos siguen creyendo que el país necesita hacer más para reparar los daños del pasado.

El pasado colonial de Portugal

Durante cuatro siglos, Portugal estuvo involucrado en la esclavitud y el comercio de personas africanas, un legado que aún persiste en la sociedad portuguesa y en las desigualdades raciales. Se calcula que al menos 12,5 millones de africanos fueron secuestrados y transportados a América en barcos europeos.

La mayoría de los esclavos fueron enviados a Brasil, donde trabajaron en plantaciones y minas. El trabajo esclavo impulsó la economía colonial y enriqueció a Portugal y a sus instituciones.

La necesidad de reparaciones

Muchos activistas y organizaciones han demandado reparaciones por la esclavitud y la colonización, y el presidente Rebelo de Sousa ha reconocido la necesidad de "reparar" los daños del pasado. Sin embargo, el gobierno portugués no ha dado detalles sobre cómo piensa hacerlo. En la actualidad, Portugal sigue siendo uno de los países europeos con la mayor brecha salarial entre blancos y negros, y la discriminación racial sigue siendo un problema en la sociedad portuguesa. Algunos argumentan que el gobierno portugués necesita hacer más para abordar estas desigualdades y compensar a aquellos que sufrieron under la esclavitud y la colonización.

Reacciones internacionales

El llamado a reparaciones por la esclavitud y la colonización no se limita a Portugal. En los últimos años, países africanos y del Caribe han pedido a las antiguas potencias coloniales que se hagan responsables de los abusos cometidos durante la era colonial.

El alto comisionado de la ONU para los derechos humanos, Volker Türk, pidió recientemente que los gobiernos "moven swiftly from words to action" para abordar los daños del pas ``python
